Panorama of Rural Poverty in Latin America and the Caribbean 2018, published by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), addresses the important challenges faced by the region in developing its rural territories to achieve the targets of the Sustainable Development Goals by 2030, particularly SDG 1 to end poverty in all its forms everywhere. After many years of progress, poverty and extreme rural poverty in the region have started to increase again. This is worrying news for countries of the region and the international community because, if they do not return to the path of rural poverty reduction, millions of people will be excluded from the opportunity to contribute to the development of their families, communities and countries. The 33 Member States of the United Nations in the region have pledged their commitment to eradicating rural poverty by 2030 and, despite the recent trend, it is still possible to achieve this goal. This report also highlights the persistence of significant gaps between rural and urban areas, which is incompatible with sustainable and equitable development. Of the 169 targets of the Sustainable Development Goals, 132 require actions that must be carried out in rural territories.

Carefully selected to reflect the latest research at the interface between public health and criminal justice in the US, these contributions each focus on an aspect of the relationship. How, for example, might a person's criminal activity adversely affect their health or their risk of exposure to HIV infection? The issues addressed in this volume are at the heart of policy in both public health and criminal justice. The authors track a four-fold connection between the two fields, exploring the mental and physical health of incarcerated populations; the health consequences of crime, substance abuse, violence and risky sexual behaviors; the extent to which high crime rates are linked to poor health outcomes in the same neighborhood; and the results of public health interventions among traditional criminal justice populations. As well as exploring these urgent issues, this anthology features a wealth of remarkable interdisciplinary contributions that see public health researchers focusing on crime, while criminologists attend to public health issues. The papers provide empirical data tracking, for example, the repercussions on public health of a fear of crime among residents of high-crime neighborhoods, and the correlations between HIV status and outcomes, and an individual's history of criminal activity. Providing social scientists and policy makers with vital pointers on how the criminal justice and public health sectors might work together on the problems common to both, this collection breaks new ground by combining the varying perspectives of a number of key disciplines.

In Michelle Gagnon's debut YA thriller, Don't Turn Around, computer hacker Noa Torson is as smart, tough, and complex as The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo's Lisbeth Salander. The first in a trilogy, Don't Turn Around's intricate plot and heart-pounding action will leave readers desperate for book two. Sixteen-year-old Noa has been a victim of the system ever since her parents died. Now living off the grid and trusting no one, she uses her hacking skills to stay anonymous and alone. But when she wakes up on a table in a warehouse with an IV in her arm and no memory of how she got there, Noa starts to wish she had someone on her side. Enter Peter Gregory. A rich kid and the leader of a hacker alliance, Peter needs people with Noa's talents on his team. Especially after a shady corporation threatens his life in no uncertain terms. But what Noa and Peter don't realize is that Noa holds the key to a terrible secret, and there are those who'd stop at nothing to silence her for good.

I Will Survive is the story of Gloria Gaynor, America's "Queen of Disco." It is the story of riches and fame, despair, and finally salvation. Her meteoric rise to stardom in the mid-1970s was nothing short of phenomenal, and hits poured forth that pushed her to the top of the charts, including "Honey Bee," "I Got You Under My Skin," "Never Can Say Goodbye," and the song that has immortalized her, "I Will Survive," which became a #1 international gold seller. With that song, Gloria heralded the international rise of disco that became synonymous with a way of life in the fast lane - the sweaty bodies at Studio 54, the lines of cocaine, the indescribable feeling that you could always be at the top of your game and never come down. But down she came after her early stardom, and problems followed in the wake, including the death of her mother, whose love had anchored the young singer, as well as constant battles with weight, drugs, and alcohol. While her fans always imagined her to be rich, her personal finances collapsed due to poor management; and while many envied her, she felt completely empty inside. In the early 1980s, sustained by her marriage to music publisher Linwood Simon, Gloria took three years off and reflected upon her life. She visited churches and revisited her mother's old Bible. Discovering the world of gospel, she made a commitment to Christ that sustains her to this day.

Visual Research: A Concise Introduction to Thinking Visually is the first text to present a concise overview of the significant ethical, theoretical, and practical considerations for conducting research with images. The capacity to take photos and video on handheld devices and the ability to store, post, and share such imagery online all offer tremendous opportunities for social research. The rapid development and popularity of such technology means that little technological proficiency is required, and even less theoretical and ethical consideration. This book provides an accessible introduction to doing visual research in the social sciences. Beginning with ethical considerations, this book highlights the importance of thinking visually before engaging in visual research. Further themes involve creating, organizing, and using images and are presented so as to help readers think about and work with their own visual data. Boxed case studies and further reading suggestions enhance the utility of this primer. Concise and highly focused, Visual Research will be an invaluable resource for visual, media, and communications students and researchers and others interested in visual research in the social sciences.

"Having been born a freeman, and for more than thirty years enjoyed the blessings of liberty in a free State—and having at the end of that time been kidnapped and sold into Slavery, where I remained, until happily rescued in the month of January, 1853, after a bondage of twelve years—it has been suggested that an account of my life and fortunes would not be uninteresting to the public." -an excerpt

"At this Defining Moment" Da Capo Press

Scientists have identified southern China as a likely epicenter for viral pandemics, a place where new viruses emerge out of intensively farmed landscapes and human--animal interactions. In Virulent Zones, Lyle Fearnley documents the global plans to stop the next influenza pandemic at its source, accompanying virologists and veterinarians as they track lethal viruses to China's largest freshwater lake, Poyang Lake. Revealing how scientific research and expert agency operate outside the laboratory, he shows that the search for origins is less a linear process of discovery than a constant displacement toward new questions about cause and context. As scientists strive to understand the environments from which the influenza virus emerges, the unexpected scale of duck farming systems and unusual practices such as breeding wild geese unsettle research objects, push scientific inquiry in new directions, and throw expert authority into question. Drawing on fieldwork with global health scientists, state-employed veterinarians, and poultry farmers in Beijing and at Poyang Lake, Fearnley situates the production of ecological facts about disease emergence inside the shifting cultural landscapes of agrarian change and the geopolitics of global health.

Four essays originally delivered as lectures at the University. Statistics for Business and Economics Food & Agriculture Org. In the medieval world, geographical knowledge was influenced by religious ideas and beliefs. Whereas this point is well analysed for the Latin-Christian world, the religious character of the Arabic-Islamic geographic tradition has not yet been scrutinised in detail. This volume addresses this desideratum and combines case studies from both traditions of geographic thinking. The contributions comprise in-depth analyses of individual geographical works as for example those of al-Idrisi or Lambert of Saint-Omer, different forms of presenting geographical knowledge such as TO-diagrams or globes as well as performative aspects of studying and meditating geographical knowledge. Focussing on texts as well as on maps, the contributions open up a comparative perspective on how religious knowledge influenced the way the world and its geography were perceived and described in the medieval world.

The book is designed to provide a review on the methods and current status of conservation of the tropical plant species. It will also provide the information on the richness of the tropical plant diversity, the need to conserve, and the potential utilization of the genetic resources. Future perspectives of conservation of tropical species will be discussed. Besides being useful to researchers and graduate students in the field, we hope to create a reference for a much wider audience who are interested in conservation of tropical plant diversity.

Aspects of Spanish-American Literature Rowman & Littlefield
Enquête sur la signification d'une date plutôt inhabituelle... Anna est heureuse. Sa vie à Roscoff, après un début cruel, a repris les couleurs du bonheur. Un mari, des jumeaux et son métier, journaliste, qui la passionne. Mais alors que signifient ces messages énigmatiques qui arrivent au siège du magazine, pour elle ? Qui la presse de faire la lumière sur un événement dont elle ignore tout ? Qu'y a-t-il derrière le 32 octobre dont lui parle le mystérieux messenger et quelle signification revêt cette date improbable aux yeux de celui qui égrène ces messages ? Soutenue par ses lecteurs qui au travers de sa rubrique, se prennent au jeu, Anna va chercher. Elle sera aidée par Mary, une jeune femme rencontrée récemment, avec laquelle elle fera un voyage en Irlande. Parallèlement, le bel équilibre de sa vie se fissure. De mystérieux papillons noirs font irruption dans son existence. Du cœur du Connemara aux rivages de Roscoff, le cauchemar va aller grandissant jusqu'au dénouement inattendu. Découvrira-t-elle à temps le sens du 32 octobre ? Un polar passionnant qui entraîne le lecteur des côtes bretonnes jusqu'en Irlande ! EXTRAIT Le ciel de Roscoff s'était chargé de nuées orageuses et l'air sentait l'humidité. Le soleil s'était caché et de grosses gouttes commençaient à s'écraser sur le sol. Les deux garçons remontèrent leur capuche avant de tourner les talons, laissant le lieu en l'état. Le silence revint, seulement troublé par le crépitement régulier de la pluie qui redoublait d'intensité. Des fragments de pierres restaient en bas du mur, témoins de la curiosité des deux garçons. L'ouverture laissait sourdre une obscurité profonde. En haut du mur, là où le fer avait pénétré, figurait un petit trou circulaire. Derrière les pierres, le soleil s'était retiré, après sa brève incursion. La crypte était redevenue totalement obscure. Un insecte profita de l'ouverture pour glisser ses antennes. L'obscurité l'absorba d'un coup tandis qu'il descendait le long d'un bras décharné. Il parcourut son nouveau territoire avec vélocité, sans déclencher la moindre réaction de la part de l'habitant du lieu. Le corps immobile, momifié, reçut un minuscule souffle provenant d'une bourrasque pluvieuse à l'extérieur. Un air vif se mêla à l'air confiné du tombeau vertical. Quelques cheveux, fins et longs, se soulevèrent du crâne où ils étaient plantés, avant de retomber lentement. Les yeux sans vie étaient profondément enfoncés dans les orbites et la bouche s'ouvrait sur un interminable cri silencieux. À PROPOS DE L'AUTEUR Martine Le Penec : auteur d'origine bretonne et normande, je vis à Toulon où je travaille après avoir habité Brest et Lorient. L'écriture est une seconde nature depuis toujours. Toutes les situations psychologiques me passionnent ainsi que l'ambivalence des êtres. J'aime voyager et découvrir d'autres lieux et cultures aussi Irlande, Etats-Unis et Pays-Bas se retrouvent parfois dans mes intrigues policières. Les accidents de vie qui émaillent celles de personnages ordinaires, sont pour moi une source inépuisable d'inspiration. J'aime écrire des histoires qui parlent de mémoire, et particulièrement de mémoire oubliée. Je suis aussi maman de quatre filles et, fatalement, tout ce qui blesse la maternité, séparation, deuil, enlèvement d'enfants, entre en résonance avec moi et cela se retrouve dans mes romans. Les ambiances mystérieuses, ce qui se devine dans des effilochées de brume, les angoisses qui sourdent et enveloppent les personnages forment la base de mes suspenses sur fond de rivages bretons que je vous invite à découvrir.

Reports Of Cases Argued And Determined In The Supreme Court Of Alabama; Wentworth Press

The politics and science of health and disease remain contested terrain among scientists, health practitioners, policy makers, industry, communities, and the public. Stakeholders in disputes about illnesses or conditions disagree over their fundamental causes as well as how they should be treated and prevented. This thought-provoking book crosses disciplinary boundaries by engaging with both public health policy and social science, asserting that science, activism, and policy are not separate issues and showing how the contribution of environmental factors in disease is often overlooked.
